2010 Wilson Centre

REPORT

DIRECTOR'S

Brian Hodges

It's my great pleasure to present to you the 2010 Wilson Centre Annual Report. I would first like to warmly thank Dr. Heather Carnahan who was Acting Director from the summer of 2009 until June 2010 while I was on sabbatical leave in France. Dr. Carnahan did an excellent job leading the Centre in my absence and I am very grateful to her. The Wilson Centre has enjoyed another year of extraordinary accomplishments in 2010. Several new members were appointed and some of our leadership positions changed hands. Dr. Carnahan was appointed the BMO Chair in Health Professions Education Research in April 2010. Drs. Mathieu Albert and Adam Dubrowski were promoted to the rank of Associated Professor. Our wonderful new Richard Currie Fellowship Program came to fruition; and the first two Currie Fellowships were awarded to Sarah Whyte and Saroo Sharma for the 2010-2011 year; and the first international competition for the 2011 Currie Fellowship was subsequently launched.

Once again the research productivity of the Wilson Centre is exceptional with 95 grants totalling nearly 5-million dollars of peer-reviewed funding. A total of 87 peer-reviewed publications and 234 presentations top off this year. Our wonderful Research Day has been renamed The Richard Reznick Wilson Centre Research Day. This event will be the target for a major fund raising campaign with the Toronto General and Toronto Western Foundation to fully endow the most important activity in the life of the Wilson Centre. The Wilson Centre remains enormously grateful to Dr. Reznick for founding the Centre and we are very pleased to support the annual research day in his honour.

Education Events

International Membership We welcomed a series of visiting scholars from around the world including Dr. Nancy Theberge from the University of Waterloo, Dr. Laura Dempster from our own Faculty of Dentistry, Dr. Carol Anne Courneya from the University of British Columbia, Dr. Pierre Pottier from the University of Nantes in France, Dr. Li Jing from China, and Drs. Atalay Alem and Teshome Shibre from Ethiopia. The Scientist ranks of the Wilson Centre expanded with the addition of Drs. Carol-anne Moulton, Ayelet Kuper and Simon Kitto. In the newly created Adjunct Scientist category, Dr. Maria Mylopoulos was appointed in February 2010 and Dr. Shiphra Ginsburg in November 2010. As well, Dr. Vicki LeBlanc, the Associate Director of the Wilson Centre, shifted her appointment to a joint position with the University of Toronto, Faculty of Dentistry. We welcomed two new Clinician Educator Researchers, Drs. Jerry Maniate and Andrea Donovan. Our Fellowship ranks have also grown again and these new members of our community are shown in the Ffellowship section of this report.

Details of our funding are presented in the graphs in this report. The core operating budget of the Centre continues to come from the University of Toronto Faculty of Medicine and the University Health Network, though these are increasingly supplemented by contracts directly with various departments in the Faculty of Medicine as well as other University of Toronto departments, hospitals and institutes across the TAHSN network. The attainment of the Currie Fellowship this year brings us to a total of 6-million dollars in endowed funds, another source of funding which is becoming an important component of the Centre's support. We are also generating revenue from the popular Wilson Centre Atelier series and this will continue to expand in coming years. Despite the financial challenges of the economy in general and of our partner organizations in recent years, the Wilson Centre has remained on very solid financial footing.

Finances (click chart for zoom)

In 2010 I was appointed Vice President Education for the University Health Network, the portfolio to which the Director of the Wilson Centre reports on the hospital side. This is an exciting challenge for me but also bittersweet in that I will leave the position of Director of the Wilson Centre in the year 2011/2012, a little more than one year ahead of the end of my second 5-year term. Thus, 2011 will be a busy year in continuing to support the strong growth of productivity at the Wilson Centre on one hand and preparing for this important transition on the other.

I hope you enjoy our annual report and I am very grateful to all the members of the Centre for their contributions.

Yours Sincerely, Brian Hodges

Mathieu Albert PhD

Associate Professor, Department of Psychiatry

Sociology of Health Professions and Sciences

Dr. Albert's current research projects study scientific knowledge production in health research and in the field of medical education research. The goal of his project on health research is to understand the dynamics of competition and collaboration between biomedical scientists, clinical scientists and social scientists in the emergent interdisciplinary health research field in Canada. The goal of his project on medical education research is to analyze current debates within the domain regarding the forms that research should take and the roles it should play. His work also focuses on the political dimension of knowledge production.

Psychomotor Skills and Health Professions

Dr. Carnahan's research activities focus on the application of principles from the field of motor learning to the training of health professionals. In additional to her basic science work addressing theoretical development regarding the role of haptic (touch) information in the control and learning of manual tasks, she is involved in studying the use of simulation for training technical clinical skills. Work within her lab has shown that the theoretical models that have been established in the fields of kinesiology and psychology are generalizable to the learning of more complex skills that are acquired in the clinical domain. These principles are applied to simulation- based education.

Simulation-Based Education

Dr. Dubrowski's research involves studying the acquisition of complex clinical skills, behaviours and attitudes by learners when engaged in simulationbased education. Dr. Dubrowski's current research actives include three main areas: (1) exploring conditions of practice that optimize simulationbased education in health professions, (2) using virtual learning environments in simulation-augmented education, including educational networking and serious and educational games, and (3) validating assessment methods that will enable us to measure the effect of the above manipulations on the development of skills, behaviours and attitudes in health professionals.

Brian D. Hodges MD, PhD, FRCPC

Professor, Department of Psychiatry Director and Scientist, The Wilson Centre Richard and Elizabeth Currie Chair in Health Professions Education Research

Evaluation, Globalization and Discourses of Competence in the Health Professions

Dr. Hodges' research focuses on using Foucauldian-inspired discourse analysis to study the nature and construction of various aspects of health professional education and practice: competence, assessment, professionalism, and globalization. He led the national undergraduate environmental scan for the Future of Medical Education in Canada project and is an advisor to the postgraduate phase. He is currently undertaking a 3-year SSHRCfunded project together with colleagues at McGill University to study the discourses of excellence and equity in Canadian medical schools admissions processes. He is an active teacher and speaker, both in Toronto and internationally, on qualitative methods, discourse analysis and various dimensions of competence, assessment and globalization.

Jodi Herold BHSc(PT), PhD

Assistant Professor, Department of Medicine Evaluation Research Scientist & Coordinator, Undergraduate Medical Education

Assessment and Evaluation of Clinical Competence

Dr. Jodi Herold's work focuses on performance-based assessment of clinical competence. She has worked with a number of faculty and clinician educators to develop and adapt assessment methodologies that evaluate various components of clinical competence. Past projects have included adaptation of the mini-CEX evaluation format to the construct of professionalism and adaptation of the OSCE format to assess "non-Expert" CanMEDS roles. Most recently, she received a grant from the Medical Council of Canada to develop an evaluation method that employs written profiles of student performance developed to capture multiple dimensions or components of competence. Dr. Herold has taught courses on the assessment of clinical competence at OISE and the University of Toronto. In addition to publishing and presenting in the medical education and measurement domains, she has worked with credentialing and evaluation agencies in numerous health professions on the development, validation and ongoing quality assurance of performance-based assessments of clinical competence.

Sociology of Knowledge Translation

Dr. Kitto is a sociologist who has been working in medical education research since 2002. His research interests range from evidence-based surgery through to professionalism. His current work focuses on a Sociology of Knowledge Translation (SKT) which emphasizes the importance of analyzing processes (the relational production of new knowledge and clinical practices between KT practitioners and their communities) and contextual factors (i.e. culture, history, structure) in knowledge translation activities.

Critical Histories of Medical Education Research

In 2010, Dr. Kuper continued her sociohistorical analysis of struggles for disciplinary and epistemological legitimacy in the field of medical education research. She complemented this textual analysis of historical contingencies by addressing their contemporary ramifications within the medical training process, including gaps in current formal medical curricula and various aspects of medicine's hidden curriculum. She also worked to advance the local use of narrative and the humanities in medical education. She regularly teaches about gualitative methods to local and international audiences.

Influence of Stress on Performance and Learning

Dr. LeBlanc is working with colleagues and students to explore the effects of acute stressors on subjective and physiological responses, on performance, and on team interactions in the domains of paramedic services, police services, trauma resuscitations, paediatric resuscitations, critical care, and social work. To date, her research projects have investigated the impact of acute stressors during in-training examinations and during high-fidelity simulations. By understanding how, when, and why stress impacts health professionals and emergency workers, she will be able to target training initiatives and technological support where they are most likely to provide a benefit. Dr. LeBlanc's secondary program of research aims to explore the effectiveness of simulation for training and assessment.

Judgment and Self Monitoring in Practice

In 2010, Dr. Moulton built on her PhD thesis research in the field of surgical judgment and decision-making specifically focusing on how psychosocial factors might influence the individual surgeon. Employing a phenomenological approach, Dr. Moulton explores the experiences of surgeons in the decisive moments of practice. Her work provides a vocabulary for understanding the psycho-social dimensions of surgical practice and contributes to a better understanding of the personal causes of surgeon error. Her ongoing clinical activities as a hepatobiliary surgeon and teacher provide a unique perspective for exploring her studies.

Interprofessional Education and Practice

Dr. Reeves continues his work developing the empirical base for interprofessional education (IPE) and interprofessional collaboration (IPC) through a number of primary research studies based across a range of clinical and educational contexts. He also maintains a focus on developing the theoretical base for the interprofessional field through the use of sociological perspectives. He continues to undertake consultation work with a number of health and educational organizations locally, nationally and internationally, as well as provide mentorship and supervision to colleagues and graduate students.

Learning and Memory in the Health Professions

Dr. Woods' most recent work examines the interaction between basic science knowledge and clinical knowledge in clinical reasoning. Applying principles from cognitive psychology to health professions education, she has developed a program of research that examines how theoretical knowledge and clinical features can be integrated during undergraduate training. This work has expanded from laboratory studies to include efforts towards translating experimental findings into sound educational practice. Ongoing projects include efforts to better understand the retention of clinical skills after a period of absence from practice and the use of tests to improve student memory and diagnostic performance. Dr. Woods is currently expanding her program of research to address issues related to self-regulated learning and the ability of trainees to identify those forms of knowledge that are most relevant to their future goals.

Defining and Evaluating Professionalism

Dr. Ginsburg's primary research program is focused on understanding and evaluating professionalism in medical education using qualitative methods (grounded theory) and mixed methods research. This work is continuing and extending into the practicing clinician domain. A second line of research involves understanding how clinical supervisors conceptualize and evaluate the clinical competence of their learners, again using mixed methods. Other research interests and areas of collaboration include the development of professional development and identity formation and education scholarship. Dr. Ginsburg participates in professionalism initiatives at the local, national and international levels, and serves as Deputy Editor at the iournal Medical Education, and as a Fellow on the Editorial Board of Academic Medicine. She is the current Kimball Scholar at the American Board of Internal Medicine.

Dr. Ginsburg serves as Director of the Eliot Phillipson Clinician-Educator Training Program in the Department of Medicine and is Co-Director of the Centre for Faculty Development's new certificate course "CoFER" (Core Foundations in Education Research). In her roles for the department, Dr. Ginsburg enjoys mentoring other faculty members in the development of their own research and scholarship.

Maria Mylopoulos PhD

Assistant Professor, Department of Paediatrics Education Researcher, SickKids Learning Institute

Development and Maintenance of Expertise

Dr. Mylopoulos' research program explores the development and maintenance of expertise in healthcare, with a particular focus on how knowledge is constructed by practitioners through the everyday activity of innovative problem solving. The goal of her research is to evolve our understanding of the cognitive and meta-cognitive processes that underpin this form of innovation as it occurs in real-world contexts, using theoretical frameworks of adaptive expertise, knowledge building and cognitive anthropology. Current research projects include exploring the construct of 'team adaptive expertise', investigating the process of 'innovating' in the OR context and exploring the phenomenon of 'performance improvement' over time. Through ongoing collaborations, Dr. Mylopoulos is expanding the scope of her research program to address issues in the areas of learning transfer, informal self-regulated learning, team learning and constructions of competence.

Andrea Donovan MD, FRCPC

Dr. Donovan is a Musculoskeletal Radiologist and an Assistant Professor in the Department of Medical Imaging at Sunnybrook Health Sciences Centre. She received her MD from the University of Ottawa in 2002 and then completed radiology residency training at the University of Toronto and a musculoskeletal radiology fellowship at New York University, Hospital for Joint Diseases. She joined the radiology faculty in 2008. Dr. Donovan is active in medical education and also in musculoskeletal imaging research. She completed the 2 year longitudinal Master Teacher Program at the University of Toronto and is currently pursuing a Master's degree in Medical Education (MEd) through the University of Dundee. Dr. Donovan's interests in medical education include professionalism, mentorship, and resident teaching skill development. She received funding from the Canadian Medical Association to study the role of mentoring relationships in residency training. Dr. Donovan was funded by the Radiological Society of North America to study the need for resident-teacher training in radiology. She was the recipient of the 2011 AUR Whitley Award for her work in the area of resident teaching skills. Dr. Donovan holds a University of Toronto Dean's Fund to study professionalism issues specific to radiology residency training.

Jerry Mathew Maniate MD, MEd, FRCPC

Dr. Maniate studied at the University of Manitoba where he completed his undergraduate and subsequently his postgraduate (Internal Medicine & Medical Oncology) medical education. He completed a Master's of Education (Health Profession) at the OISE/UT and was the inaugural Joint Fellow at the Wilson Centre and the Centre for Faculty Development (CFD). Dr. Maniate is currently working at St. Joseph's Health Centre (Toronto) in the Section of Haematology/Oncology, Department of Medicine and is an Assistant Professor in the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Toronto. He is also an Academic Educator through the CFD and is active with faculty development. Dr. Maniate is actively involved in numerous administrative / leadership activities at the University of Toronto but also nationally as a member of the Steering Committee for the AFMC Future of Medical Education in Canada Postgraduate Project, a member of the Collaborative Advisory Committee on Intra-Professionalism (CACI), and a member of the Canadian Association for Medical Educators (CAME) Executive Committee. Dr. Maniate is currently working in two main, yet intertwining areas of scholarship: 1) exploring the intended and unintended effects of globalization on medical education systems including (but not limited to) accreditation, assessment, governance, curriculum and health human resources planning; and 2) understanding medical professionalism through other perspectives. In recognition for his active involvement in education and clinical activities, Dr. Maniate was a recipient of the 2011 St. Joseph's Health Centre, Legend Award – Excellence.

is a PhD candidate at the University of Toronto Faculty of Dentistry. Mariam received her Bachelor of Dental Surgery in 2003 from the Faculty of Dentistry at King Abdul-Aziz University, Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. She is currently a scholarship student from Kuwait University. Her work with the Wilson Centre began when she started her specialty training in Oral and Maxillofacial Radiology in 2005. She studied the role of basic science education in oral radiology. She received her MSc in Oral and Maxillofacial Radiology in 2008. She is currently a fellow at the Wilson Centre as a PhD Candidate and continues to study the role of basic science knowledge in enhancing clinical performance with her supervisor Dr. Nicole Woods.

is pursuing a Master's of Science at the Department of Health Policy, Management and Evaluation at the University of Toronto. Her thesis explores the experience of landed immigrants, refugees and people without status seeking access to healthcare in Toronto. This research project is the first academic study in North America to apply qualitative research techniques towards understanding the challenges that people without status face when accessing healthcare. Ruth has a strong interest in global health formed through her work experiences in Taiwan, Myanmar, New Zealand and as an ambassador for the Chinese Family Planning Association. Ruth is supported by a Social Sciences and Humanities Research Award of Canada.

is a Post-Doctoral Fellow at the Wilson Centre through the Department of Psychiatry (University of Toronto) Research Scholarship and Innovation in Education (RISE) program. Wendy applies a critical social science perspective to the study of knowledge production and translation in the field of health and health education. Her PhD research, based at the Dalla Lana School of Public Health, University of Toronto, examines the responses of basic health scientists towards shifting priorities in science funding and the blurring of boundaries between science, government and industry.

after obtaining BSc, MSc, and MD degrees from McGill University, he went to The University of Miami/Jackson Memorial Hospital and completed residencies in General Surgery and Cardiothoracic Surgery. He came to The University of Toronto/Sunnybrook Health Sciences Centre and became a Clinical Associate in the Division of Cardiac and Vascular Surgery. He has recently been appointed to a full staff position. Clinical interests include beating-heart and minimally invasive cardiac surgery as well as vascular surgery, thoracic surgery and pacemakers. He is in the process of completing a master's degree in Medical Education through University of Dundee and has joined the Wilson Centre under Dr. Adam Dubrowski with a focus on developing simulation in cardiac surgery as a method for training and assessment.

graduated from medicine at McMaster University (1999). She completed both her residency training in General Surgery (2006) and a fellowship in General Surgical Oncology (2008) at the University of Toronto. During her residency, she also received her Masters of Education (2003) from the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE) as a fellow at the Wilson Centre. Laura has now entered a PhD program in medical sociology at the Institute of Medical Sciences (IMS). Her work focuses on the changing demographics of medical students and its impact on surgery and surgical education.

obtained her MD degree at the University of Montreal in 2000. She then completed an internal medicine residency, followed by a fellowship in intensive care medicine. In 2005, she completed a clinical fellowship in adult critical care at the Sunnybrook Health Sciences Centre. She then became a fellow at the Wilson Centre and completed a Master in Medical Education at OISE in 2008. In September 2008, she started the PhD degree through the Institute of Medical Science, with an ongoing research interest for the improvement of acute resuscitative skills teaching to the residents. Dr. Piguette joined the Department of Critical Care of Sunnybrook as an intensivist in July 2007.

qualified from the University of Leicester Medical School, UK in 2003. After completing her internship and part of her anaesthesia residency, she moved to Canada in 2007, continuing her residency training at the University of Toronto. It was here that she explored further her ongoing interests in medical education and joined the Wilson Centre Fellowship program. Her research interests concern interprofessional collaboration, currently focusing on the role of the anaesthetist in the obstetric team. Saroo hopes that her current and future research will inform the design of evidencebased interprofessional education interventions, which will impact team collaboration and the delivery of safe patient care.

is a PhD student at the Institute of Medical Science, University of Toronto. She received a BSc in clinical nutrition from the University of Western Ontario and a MHSc in Community Nutrition from the University of Toronto. Using an ethnographic approach and drawing from critical social theory, narrative research and science and technology studies, Stasey's research will explore the use of healthcare technology in the clinic and the home among families who have a child with cystic fibrosis. She plans to complete the PhD program in 2012. Stasey is supported by a CIHR Canada Graduate Scholarship and a CIHR Cross-STIHR Fellowship in Healthcare, Technology and Place at the University of Toronto.

Sarah Whyte BSc, MA

is completing a PhD in English Language and Literature at the University of Waterloo. Her research taps the potential of rhetorical theories—and their traditional concern with knowledge, persuasive language, and ethics—for understanding how research from the sciences and humanities is produced, promoted, taken up and resisted in healthcare settings. This topic brings her educational background in Biomedical Science (BSc, University of Guelph) and English (MA, University of Waterloo) together with her professional experience in medical writing and educational research. Before beginning her PhD, Sarah worked as a research coordinator with Dr. Lorelei Lingard at the Wilson Centre. Following on that experience, her dissertation currently focuses on the promotion and study of team checklists in the operating theatre.

completed medical education at the University of Toronto (2008). He is currently in his 3rd year of General Surgery residence at University of Toronto and pursuing a Master in Science degree at the Institute of Medical Science, University of Toronto with a focus in Medical Education. He is also a member of the Clinical Investigator Program at the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada. Specific research interests are in the areas of technical skill assessment and self-quided learning in general surgery.

Qualitative Research in Depth

This workshop provided participants the opportunity to reflect on their research programs and grapple with challenges, potentials, controversies and diverse perspectives of qualitative inquiry. The program was designed for those with experience in conducting qualitative research and focused on methodology more than method.

Twelve participants honed their research skills in this dynamic and interactive program led by Mathieu Albert, Brian Hodges, Simon Kitto, Ayelet Kuper, Lorelei Lingard, Tina Martimianakis, Nancy McNaughton, Maria Mylopoulos, Sarah Whyte and the participation of Mariana Arteaga, Douglas Buller, Helen Caraoulanis and Clarissa Oleksiuk.

SimONE and Atelier Wilson Centre

SimONE (formerly the Network of Excellence in Simulation for Clinical Teaching and Learning) jointly with The Wilson Centre presented their 2nd annual course, on May 25-28, 2010, in Simulation-Based Research Refined, a four-day intensive course in simulation-based education research.

The workshop focused on guiding participants in developing improved understanding and skills in simulation-based research design and implementation. Through the course, participants developed all of the elements of a research study (research question, study design, data collection and analysis details) that advances the field of simulation, to a sufficient degree that it was ready to be implemented at their home institution.

Eleven participants attended this program led by Vicki LeBlanc, Adam Dubrowski, Brian Hodges, Pamela Morgan, Viren Naik, Kathryn Parker, Nancy McNaughton, and Walter Tavares.

The Richard K. Reznick Wilson Centre Research Day

This annual event, held on October 22, 2010 was a successful event highlighting research in health professional education conducted by faculty and students affiliated with the Wilson Centre with 62 presentations (33 podium presentations and 29 poster sessions). This year, we have officially changed the name of this event in recognition of the contributions of Dr. Richard K. Reznick who founded the Wilson Centre and served as inaugural Director from 1996-2002. It was a unique opportunity to share and celebrate the remarkable depth and breadth of scholarship in health professional education underway at the University of Toronto and the University Health Network. Dr. Annmarie Adams from McGill University gave an engaging and provocative address entitled "Medicine by Design: Space and Place in Healthcare Research".

The Richard K. Reznick Research Award for best research paper was presented to Carole Chatalalsingh RD, MA, PhD(c) for her outstanding paper entitled, "Leading an Interprofessional Team Learning Practice". There was a tie for best poster presentation. The awards were presented to Camille Williams MHSc, BASc for the poster entitled, "Evaluation of an Interactive Simulation for Personal Protective Equipment in Healthcare" and Kulamakan Kulasegaram BHSc for the poster entitled, "All Mixed Up: The Effect of Practice Context on Practice Mode for Transfer". Vicki LeBlanc PhD, Wilson Centre Scientist, received the Wilson Centre Mentorship Award 2009–2010 in recognition of outstanding individual mentorship in the Wilson Centre Fellowship Program.

Toronto Addis Ababa Academic Collaboration

With the Toronto Addis Ababa Academic Collaboration (TAAAC http:// www.taaac.com), led by Dr. Clare Pain, we continue to maintain close ties with colleagues in Addis Ababa University (AAU), Ethiopia. In 2010 we hosted two psychiatrists from Addis Ababa Medical School: Drs. Atalay Alem and Teshome Shibre.

Dr. Atalay Alem Psychiatrist, Professor of Psychiatry, Faculty of Medicine, Executive Director of The College of Health Sciences and Vice President of AAU is one of the three founders and coordinator of the first psychiatry residency program in Ethiopia and of Toronto Addis Ababa Psychiatry Project (TAAPP). In his new position, Atalay is the most senior leader at AAU closely involved with TAAAC.

Dr. Teshome Shibre graduated from Addis Ababa University, Gondar College of Medical Sciences July 1989. He obtained his PhD from Umea University, Sweden in 2002. He completed his Psychiatry Residency Training in 2005 as one of the first Toronto Addis Ababa Psychiatry Project (TAAPP) graduates. His research work has focused mainly on schizophrenia and bipolar disorder case identification methods in different cultural ethnic backgrounds, course and outcome and caregivers burden studies. During his 2010 Toronto TAAPP fellowship he was Clinical Fellow in Geriatric Psychiatry at Mount Sinai Hospital.

Visiting Professors A-J

Dr. Carol Ann Courneya, a Wilson Centre Affiliated Scholar and an Associate Professor in the Faculty of Medicine at the University of British Columbia, started her relationship with the Wilson Centre on a sabbatical in 2009. The result was the launch this year of her textbook Cardiac Physiology: A Clinical Approach (Lippincott Wilkins and Williams). She continues to spend time each year at the Wilson Centre to foster collaboration and to engage in medical education scholarship.

Dr. Laura Dempster is a Wilson Centre Affiliated Scholar and an Assistant Professor in the Department of Biological and Diagnostic Sciences, Faculty of Dentistry, University of Toronto. She also is the inaugural holder of the Kamienski Professorship in Dental Education Research at the Faculty of Dentistry and was a Visiting Professor at the Wilson Centre as part of her sabbatical leave from July 2009 to June 2010. During the second half of her sabbatical year, she had the opportunity to spend time at the Wilson Centre and to be involved in many activities. Dr. Dempster worked in collaboration with Dr. Vicki LeBlanc to develop a series of research projects related to patient perceptions and student beliefs around dental anxiety, and the effects of anxiety and stress on student performance. She also joined Dr. LeBlanc's weekly lab group which addresses issues related to simulation in health profession education and has written 2 peer-reviewed papers which will be published in 2011.

Dr. Li Jing, an Associate Professor in the Department of Sports and Health, Nanjing Sport Institute, visited the Wilson Centre from May to November 2010. Her specialty is Traditional Chinese Medicine. During those six months she worked in collaboration with Dr. Heather Carnahan to investigate the unique features of expert acupuncture needling and twirling in order to develop acupuncture accreditation standards and promote the teaching of acupuncture skills. Data were collected from 24 participants (12 experts and 12 novices) and these data are currently being analyzed. An abstract on the preliminary findings from this research was presented as a poster at the Wilson Centre Research Day of October 2010. She also gave a verbal presentation on the topic of music therapy at the 42nd annual meeting of the Canadian Society for Psychomotor Learning and Sport Psychology, Ottawa, In addition, she has written 3 review papers that have already been submitted for publication.

Dr. Pierre Pottier is an internist and the coordinator of a young team of medical education researchers at the Université de Nantes, France since September 2007. Upon completing his Masters in Education Sciences, he reached the conclusion, based on qualitative work, that medical students expressed a high level of anxiety during ambulatory consultations and that this stress was likely to impair their clinical judgment. He spent the full month of June 2009 at the Wilson Centre developing a program of research in collaboration with Dr. Vicki LeBlanc. The planned research program was divided into 4 phases, consisting of three studies. The data collection for the first two studies was scheduled to take place from July 2009 to May 2010. During his second visit, in May and June 2010, he worked with Dr. LeBlanc's group to analyze the data from the first two studies and prepared two manuscripts for publication. In addition, he designed the methodology of a collaborative simulation-based research study looking at the impact of stress on the clinical reasoning of medical students in France and Canada.

Dr. Nancy Theberge visited the Wilson Centre from January through June 2010. She is a sociologist and Professor in the Department of Kinesiology at the University of Waterloo with a cross appointment in the Department of Sociology. Her research interests are in social aspects of injuries in sport and work and the sociology of professions, focusing on health professions working with musculoskeletal conditions. During her visit at the Wilson Centre she completed manuscripts on the professional practice of ergonomists and on gendered constructions of injuries in sport and work. and performed data collection for a Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council-funded study of social constructions of women's sports related injuries. She also worked with Dr. Heather Carnahan on an analysis of the similarities and contrasts in the development of Kinesiology and Medical Education as scientific disciplines that was presented at the Wilson Centre Research Day in October, 2010. They are continuing to work on this project in preparation for a journal submission. Dr. Theberge will present some of her research on health professions at the Wilson Centre for Excellence in Medical Education-hosted symposium Social Science Perspectives on Health Professions Education on May 6, 2011.

Visiting Students

Hélène Caillault from Paris, France completed an elective at the Wilson Centre from February 15 to April 30, 2010 under mentorship from Christophe Segouin from Paris and Wilson Centre Affiliated Scholar, and members of the Wilson Centre alobalization study team.
